

EXPOSURE:

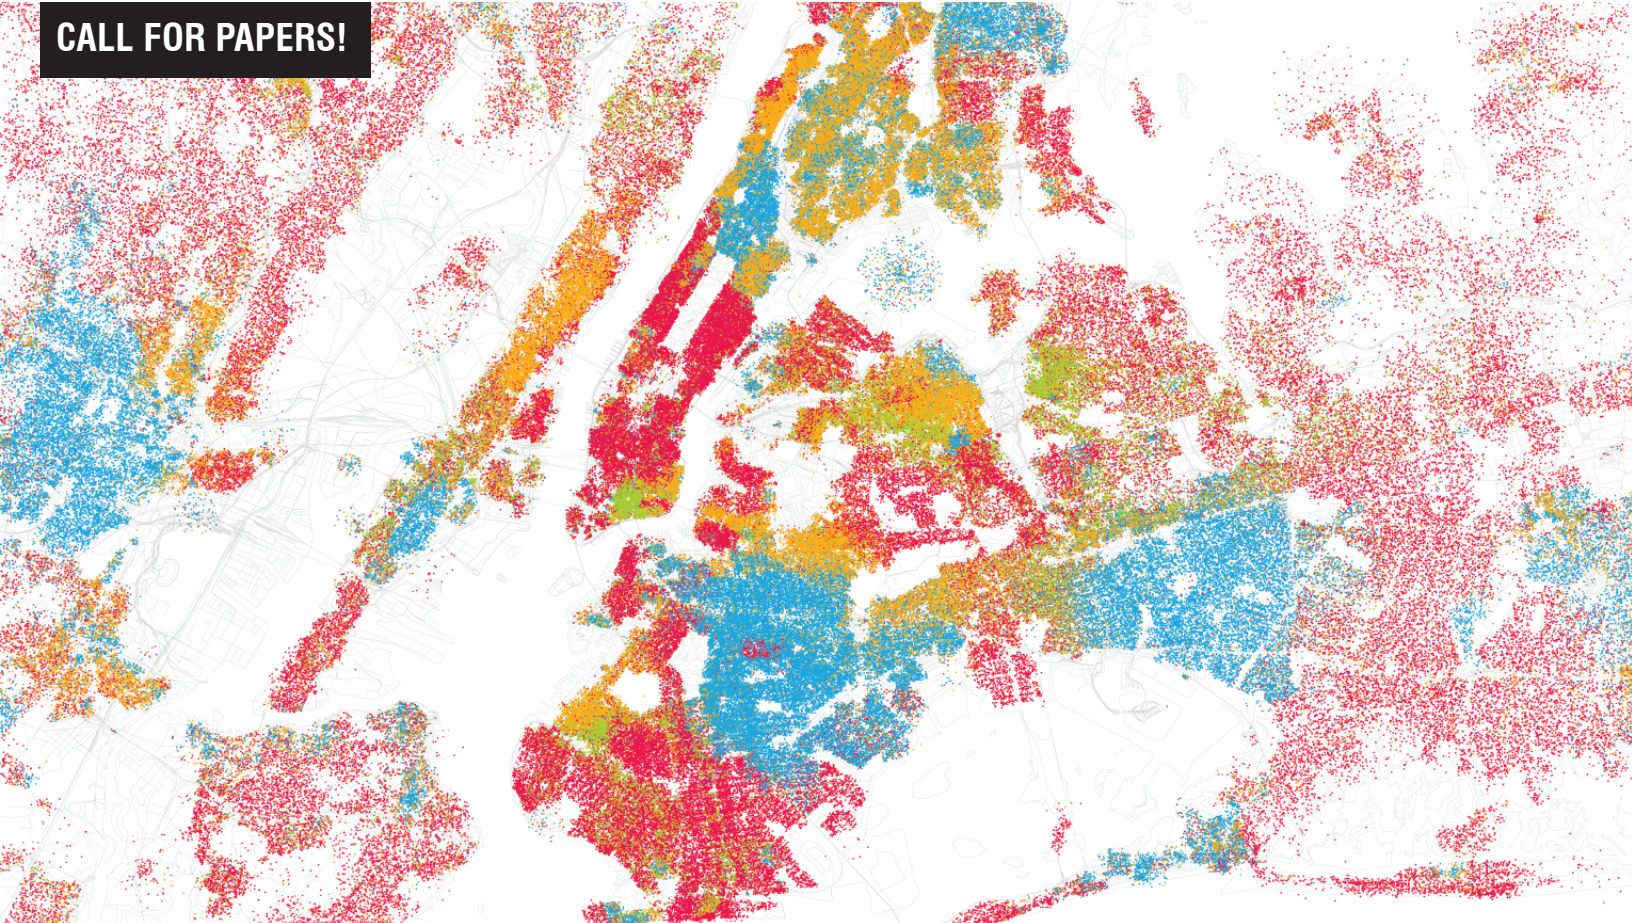

CONTEMPORARY ARTICULATIONS OF RACE IN NEW YORK CITY AND BEYOND

APRIL 15_(FRI), 2011 10AM-4PM

CASA HISPANICA (116TH ST, B. BROADWAY AND RIVERSIDE)

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY
IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK

CALL FOR PAPERS!

“The specter of color is apparent even when it goes unmentioned, and it is all too often the unseen force that influences public policy as well as private relationships.”

- John Hope Franklin, 1993

Columbia University’s Center for the Study of Ethnicity and Race invites papers from any undergraduate discipline at nearby colleges that seek to expose, uncover, illuminate, or describe how daily articulations of institutional and private power inform an understanding of race and ethnicity in New York and beyond.

The daylong conference will feature a keynote address by Dr. Marc Lamont Hill, author of Beats, Rhymes, and Classroom Life. Through panel presentations, an informal luncheon, and in-depth discussions, the conference will provide a forum for students in various disciplinary fields to engage each other’s work and deepen the discussion of Race and Ethnic studies within and beyond the university.

ABSTRACT SUBMISSIONS

Abstracts of 200-300 words should be submitted by email no later than March 25th to ark35@columbia.edu. Participants will be notified by March 27th. Unfortunately we will not be able to provide transportation or housing.

Possible topics for papers include, but are not limited to:

- Race Relations in the United States
- Race and Education
- Bilingualism
- Race and Gender
- Immigration
- Race and Law
- Internal and External Colonialism
- Minority cultural practices