DESCRIPTION: Manuscripts, photographs, subject files, and printed materials of Aleksandr K. Svitich (1870-1963), chiefly concerning the Orthodox church in interwar Poland. Svitich was a lay official of the church, and worked for the Russian newspapers in Poland, Za Svobodu and Russkii Golos. Manuscripts by Svitich discuss primarily the Orthodox church in Poland; there are also his diaries from 1939-40 (in Poland). Also included is an essay, in an unidentified hand, attributed by Svitich to V. V. Rozanov. There are photographs of Mikhail Artsybashev and Vladimir Burtsev. Subject files concern: the Orthodox church in the Vilnius region in the late 19th century; meetings of various Russian organizations in 1917; many aspects of Orthodoxy in Poland in the 1920s and 1930s, including government persecution and Russian-Ukrainian relations; and the Orthodox church in Poland and Ukraine in World War II. Among printed materials are issues of Russkii Golos (Lwów) confiscated by the Polish government in 1939, and issues of Russian newspapers from World War II, including Vestnik Russkago Komiteta y General-Gubernatorstve (Warsaw).
