

Table of Contents

The Work of the Wor(l)d: Comparative Literature and Global Studies Antonis Balasopoulos and Stephanos Stephanides	7
---	---

Worlding the Global

The World 60s Christopher Connery	23
The University, the Universe, the World, and Globalization Masao Miyoshi	49

Literary History in Transnational Perspective

Hauntologies of Form: Race, Genre and the Literary World System Vilashini Cooppan	71
Jack London on the Fringe of Things Jonathan Auerbach	87
Interplaying National and Transnational Perspectives in post-1989 Comparative Literary History Marcel Cornis-Pope	101
Other People's Heroes: Intertexts, History, and Comparative Resistance to Totalization Gregory B. Lee	115
Mapping Texts Differently: A Case for Re-reading the South African Imaginary Liz Gunner	131

"Centers," "Peripheries," and Literary Politics

'Our Worldly Work Supplies Us': 'Vulgarizing' Heidegger Through Argentinean Literature Gisle Selnes	149
Falsification, Robberies, and Irreverence in the Periphery: The Case of Borges and Kyriakidis Eleni Kefala	165
Globality is not Worldliness R.Radhakrishnan	183
BOOK REVIEWS	199
CONTRIBUTORS	221