

CONTENTS.

	Page
GENERAL INTRODUCTION.	vii
SCOTT'S ESSAY ON THE DIVINE AUTHORITY OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.
INTRODUCTION,	1
CHAP. I. The Old Testament viewed as a Historical Record of God's Moral Government of the World,	6
II. The History of the Old Testament supported by numerous ancient traditions of almost all nations, but greatly su- perior in every respect to all other ancient histories. Its genuineness,	17
III. The Divine Evidence in Authentication of the Record of Facts and Doctrines,	1
IV. The successive Development of Revelation in direct ana- logy with the progress of man in knowledge,	46
V. The Preparatory Dispensations of Religion, in the mode of their being inculcated, in adaptation to the character of man as rude and unlearned, hence proved to be of Divine Authority,	72
VI. History of the Israelites in connexion with their obedience or disobedience to the law, a Proof that the System was given by God, and under his constant administra- tion,	91
VII. Unity of the Plan,	115
BOGUE'S ESSAY ON THE DIVINE AUTHORITY OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.
SHORT MEMOIR OF DR BOGUE,	133
PREFACE,	139
INTRODUCTION,	143
CHAP. I. On the Evidence for the Divine Authority of the New Testament, arising from the Principles which it con- tains,	150

	Page
CHAP. II. Of the Evidence for the Divine Authority of the New Testament, arising from considerations suggested by its contents,	177
III. Of the Evidence for the Divine Authority of the New Testament, arising from the testimony of the Apostles,	196
IV. Of the Evidence for the Divine Authority of the New Testament, arising from some additional considerations, which further confirm the Testimony of the Apostles,	206
V. Of the Evidence for the Divine Authority of the New Testament, arising from Miracles,	219
VI. Of the Evidence for the Divine Authority of the New Testament, arising from Prophecy,	229
VII. Of the Evidence for the Divine Authority of the New Testament, arising from the success of the Gospel,	243
VIII. Objections against the Divine Authority of the New Testament considered,	258
IX. The Sentiments and Conduct of the Deists briefly considered,	286
X. Some Miscellaneous Considerations, and Conclusion,	303

WERENFELS' DISSERTATIONS.

PREFACE BY THE TRANSLATOR,	315
DISSERT. On the Motives to Virtue proposed in the Sacred Scriptures,	319
APPENDIX. On the Cause of the little influence which these Motives have on professing Christians,	337
DISSERT. On the Threefold Witness to the Word of God,	346
SECT. 1. Of the Testimony of the Church,	ib.
2. Of the Testimony of Scripture itself,	364
3. Of the Testimony of the Holy Spirit,	372

HALYBURTON'S ESSAY ON FAITH.

SHORT MEMOIR OF PROFESSOR HALYBURTON,	383
ESSAY CONCERNING THE NATURE OF FAITH, &c.	391
CHAP. I. General Remarks,	ib.
II. The Nature of Faith, obligation to it, &c.	395
III. The Ground, or the Formal Reason, whereon Faith assents to the Scriptures, &c.	400
Twelve Propositions,	422
NOTES,	452

GUYSE'S STANDING USE OF THE SCRIPTURE.

	Page
ACCOUNT OF THE LIFE OF DR GUYSE,	461

PART FIRST.

PROOFS AND ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE STANDING USEFULNESS OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

CHAP. I. Proofs of the Standing Use of the Scriptures,	465
II. General Rules regarding the Use to be made of the Scriptures,	486
III. The Use we should make of the various contents of Scripture in particular,	504
IV. Some special purposes for which the Scriptures are of standing use,	529
SECT. 1. The Scriptures conducive to Hope,	ib.
2. The Scriptures conducive to Patience and Comfort,	544

PART SECOND.

THE SCRIPTURES VIEWED AS THE WORD OF CHRIST, THE PRACTICAL REGARD IT REQUIRES, WITH DIRECTIONS FOR UNDERSTANDING AND IMPROVING IT.

CHAP. I. The Scripture viewed as the Word of Christ,	565
SECT. 1. Christ the Author of the Scripture,	566
2. Christ the Great Subject of the Scripture,	576
II. The practical regard due to the Scripture as the Word of Christ,	583
SECT. 1. The nature of the entertainment due to the Word of Christ,	ib.
2. The guilt and folly of resting satisfied with bare notions of the Word,	594
3. The manner in which the Word of Christ should be entertained,	604
4. Directions for understanding and improving the Scriptures,	615