

CONTENTS.

DR ALEXANDER ON THE TRUE CANON OF SCRIPTURE.

Page.

INTRODUCTION,	3
-------------------------	---

PART I.—THE CANON OF THE OLD TESTAMENT.

SECT. I. Early use and import of the word Canon,	7
II. Constitution of the Canon of the Old Testament by Ezra— The Canon of the Old Testament as it now exists, sanctioned by Christ and his Apostles—Catalogues of the Books by some of the early Fathers—Agreement of Jews and Christians on this subject,	9
III. Apocryphal Books, their origin—Importance of distinguishing between Canonical and Apocryphal Books—Six Books of this class pronounced Canonical by the Council of Trent—Not in the Hebrew, nor received by the Jews, ancient or modern,	17
IV. Testimonies of the Christian Fathers, and of other learned men, down to the time of the Council of Trent, respecting the Apocrypha,	24
V. Internal evidence that these Books are not Canonical—The Writers not Prophets, and do not claim to be inspired,	37
VI. No Canonical Book of the Old Testament has been lost,	48
VII. The Oral Law of the Jews without foundation,	54
NOTES,	65

PART II.—THE CANON OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

SECT. I. Method of settling the Canon of the New Testament,	73
II. Catalogues of the Books of the New Testament—Canonical Books only cited as authority by the Fathers, and read in the Churches, as Scripture,	81
III. Order of the Books of the New Testament—Time of the Gospels being written—Notice of the Evangelists,	92
IV. Testimonies of Matthew's Gospel—Time of Publication—Language in which it was originally composed,	99

	Page.
SECT. V. Gospel of Mark—On what occasion published—Ascribed to the dictation of Peter by all the Fathers,	104
VI. Gospel of Luke—Testimonies of the Fathers respecting it,	109
VII. The objections of J. D. Michaelis to the Canonical authority of the Gospels of Mark and Luke, considered and answered,	112
VIII. The Gospel of John—Life of this Evangelist—Occasion and time of his writing—Canonical authority indisputable,	120
IX. The Acts of the Apostles—Luke the author—Canonical authority undisputed by the Fathers—Rejected only by Heretics,	124
X. Testimonies to the Canonical authority of the Fourteen Epistles of Paul,	127
XI. Canonical authority of the Seven Catholic Epistles,	140
XII. Canonical authority of the Book of Revelation,	146
XIII. No Canonical Book of the New Testament has been lost,	159
XIV. Rules for determining what Books are Apocryphal—Some account of the Apocryphal Books which have been lost—All of them condemned by the foregoing rules—Reason of the abounding of such Books,	167
XV. Apocryphal Books which are still extant—Letter of Abgarus, King of Odessa, to Jesus, and his answer—Epistle of the Laodiceans—Letters of Paul to Seneca—Protevangelion of James—The Gospel of our Saviour's infancy—The Acts of Pilate—The Acts of Paul and Thecla,	174
XVI. No part of the Christian Revelation handed down by unwritten tradition,	187
NOTES,	214
APPENDIX,	223

PALEY'S HORÆ PAULINÆ.

CHAP. I. Exposition of the Argument,	241
II. The Epistle to the Romans,	248
III. The First Epistle to the Corinthians,	267
IV. The Second —————,	281
V. The Epistle to the Galatians,	304
VI. ————— Ephesians,	327
VII. ————— Philippians,	348
VIII. ————— Colossians,	357

CONTENTS.

v

	Page.
CHAP. IX. The First Epistle to the Thessalonians,	363
X. The Second	371
XI. The First Epistle to Timothy,	376
XII. The Second	382
XIII. The Epistle to Titus,	390
XIV. The Epistle to Philemon,	394
XV. The Subscriptions of the Epistles,	399
XVI. The Conclusion,	402

FRASER'S ESSAY ON THE PLENARY AND VERBAL INSPIRATION OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

PREFACE,	423
CHAP. I. General Account of the Inspiration of the Scriptures, in its Origin, Nature, and Evidence,	425
II. Proofs of Plenary and Verbal Inspiration,	466
III. Replies to Objections,	516
IV. Conclusion,	555
NOTES,	576